

Integra Telecom, North State Communications and TCT Launch CloverLeaf

Three Additional ILECs Deploy CloverLeaf Digital's Interactive IPTV Applications

Brooklyn, NY, September 14, 2010 – CloverLeaf Digital LLC, a leading provider of interactive IPTV applications and services, today announced launches with Integra Telecom Inc. in Minnesota, North State Communications, LLC in North Carolina, and TCT in Wyoming

All three independent telephone companies are offering both CloverLeaf's DotDaily localized news and information application and Funspot casual games to their IPTV subscribers. The interactive IPTV services also feature local content published by community organizations using CloverLeaf's DashDaily web-based community content publishing tools.

Integra Telecom Inc., the telecommunications leader throughout Scott and Rice counties in Minnesota, launched CloverLeaf's services as part of their digital TV product offering in Prior Lake, Savage and Credit River Township areas of Minnesota. Mary Korhour, Integra's vice president and general manager said, "CloverLeaf's applications receive enthusiastic reviews from our customers. This is exactly what we need to differentiate ourselves from our competition."

North State Communications, one of the nation's 20 largest communications companies, is offering CloverLeaf's Services to its IPTV subscribers in High Point, North Carolina. "High Point is an extremely competitive market," said Royster Tucker, North State's President and Chief Financial Officer. "CloverLeaf's DotDaily and Funspot applications add value to our TV service and help differentiate our IPTV offering from our competitors."

TCT launched DotDaily and Funspot in 18 Wyoming communities. "We're looking for that interactivity which IPTV has promised," said Richard Wardell, TCT's Network Manager. "CloverLeaf's applications provide a first taste of what IPTV can become, and allows us to localize content for even the smallest communities that we serve as well as bringing them worldwide content on demand".

CloverLeaf's interactive TV applications are now available to IPTV subscribers in over 500 US cities. "Interactive apps like DotDaily and Funspot start to deliver on the promise of IPTV, and are the easiest and least expensive way for service providers to add value to their IPTV offering," said Lawrence Brickman, CloverLeaf's Managing Partner. "We are delighted that Integra, North State and TCT chose to join our growing roster of customers."
